

1. Go to EndNoteWeb, register, download installer and install the Firefox Extension (for Firefox) or Cite while you Write extension for IE users.

2. After the Firefox/IE restart, one has to set the option “Redirect the following MIME types for direct export files to open with EndNote Web: .ciw / .ris / .ovd / .enw” in Firefox. This is not necessary for IE.

3. For Firefox to work it has to be the default browser on the PC.

4. IE will bring up a box prompting where you want to direct export your citations to if your system have both: Endnote windows application and the EndNote Web tool bar installed.

5. To direct export references from OvidSP 3.x to ENW, choose from Export Citation List” the Option ‘EndNote’. Even when EndNote as a local windows application is already installed on your PC, the export will now automatically divert to your ENW-account. You may have to login, and the selected references are imported flawless in the “Unfiled” folder.
